

Cube: Submitting a Letter of Recommendation

Graduate Student applicants wishing to attend a programs at ICERM are required to acquire sponsorship via a letter of recommendation from their academic advisor. Please note that applications will not be fully considered until the letter of support from an advisor is submitted.

Graduate Student Instructions

Participants who are registered as graduate students in Cube will be prompted when applying to submit their advisors name in their application. Upon completing an application to attend an event at ICERM, all participants will receive a confirmation email containing a link for your advisors to allow them to submit a letter of recommendation. (see screenshot below)

As a graduate student, you will need a letter of support from your advisor. Please forward them this link to complete a letter of recommendation submission:

<https://app.icerm.brown.edu/Cube/advisor/000000000000>

Please note that your application will not be fully considered until the letter of support is submitted.

Academic advisors who follow the link will be directed to a form allowing them to submit a letter of recommendation in support of your attendance to a program at ICERM.

Alternatively advisors may access the submission form directly at <https://app.icerm.brown.edu/Cube/advisor> and submit a letter of recommendation directly by searching the applicants full name, email address, and program they wish to attend.

If you have any trouble accessing the email or have any questions about the application process, please contact applications@icerm.brown.edu.
